Welcome to Michigan Opera Theatre's Fall Season!

Greetings, dear friends, and welcome to Michigan Opera Theatre's 35th fall opera season! We're exceptionally proud to bring you another exciting season full of beautiful music, intense passion, remarkable artistry and, of course, Desperate Divas.

We begin the 2005 season, made possible by the generous support of Ford Motor Company, with Bellini's great bel canto masterpiece, Norma. Absent from our repertoire for more than a decade, Norma graces the grand stage of the Detroit Opera House for the first time. Replete with some of the most beautiful music in the operatic catalogue and one of opera's most desperate divas, it is a tale of tragic love, which will certainly leave you breathless.

We'll close the 2005 fall opera season with a perennial favorite; Puccini's La Bohème. Without a doubt, La Bohème is one of the greatest love stories ever sung and one of opera's most endearing tragedies. Puccini librettists, Giacosa and Illica, saw fit to give the opera a truly desperate diva in Mimi—in fact, a cast of desperate bohemians—and for his part, the composer produced a score so apt with the emotions of love and loss that La Bohème remains as relevant and enticing today as it was at its premiere, more than a century ago.

Now in our ninth year presenting ballet, the Detroit Opera House continues to be the only venue in Southeastern Michigan to stage the world's great dance companies. We look forward to another season of exceptional performances. The 2005-2006 DaimlerChrysler Dance Series opens, in grand fashion, with the much-anticipated return of the Kirov Ballet—one of only three U.S. performances this season. The Sleeping Beauty is a magnificent fairy tale, lavishly produced and performed by the artists of the Kirov Ballet. The Orchestra of the Mariinsky Theatre of St. Petersburg will masterfully perform Tchaikovsky's magical score.

I take special pride in noting a couple of steps into a very bright future for Michigan Opera Theatre. The completion of our final capital campaign, the Crowning Achievement, will soon bring the Detroit Opera House to completion. This 10-year journey has not only restored our beautiful theater, but also turned it into a valuable resource for our community. With the completion of our new Ford Center for Arts and Learning on the horizon, we look forward to expanding educational opportunities and welcoming learners of all ages to this magnificent new facility.

I extend my deepest gratitude to the Ford Motor Company, DaimlerChrysler, Margo Cohen, David and Marion Handleman, Lee and Floy Barthel, Maggie Allesce and all those whose generosity has contributed to the Ford Center's completion.

Additionally, the new Opera House Parking Center is open for your convenience. We've worked diligently to improve and ensure parking for your visit to the Detroit Opera House, and this beautiful new block-long facility is reserved just for you during regularly scheduled performances. If you didn't make use of the structure on this visit, I encourage you to do so on your next. It's well lit, convenient and, with entrances and exits on John R and Grand River, parking is easier than ever before. I thank you for your patience over the last year, as we brought this project to fruition.

I wish to express my deepest gratitude to board member and dear friend Herman Frankel, whose vision and foresight made the Opera House Parking Center a reality. Without his determination that Michigan Opera Theatre control its own parking destiny, this undertaking would never have happened.

The 2005-2006 seasons look to be as exciting as any in our history. I thank you for joining us, and I hope you'll return to enjoy the rest of our 35th-anniversary season.

Enjoy the performance!

ACT I

Deep in a forest, druids and warriors of Gaul gather at the altar of the god Irminsul, where their priest, Orovioso, leads them in prayer for revenge against the conquering Romans. When they have left, the Roman liner Consul, Pollione, enters with his centurion, Flavio, to whom he confesses his love for a young druid priestess, Adalgisa ("Meco alla tor di Venere"). This passion complicates his relationship with the high priestess, Norma, Orovioso's daughter, who betrayed her vows of chastity for Pollione and secretly bore him two children. Trumpets herald the druids' return, but Pollione declares his love will arm him against their wrath ("Me protegge, me difende"); Flavio nonetheless persuades him to leave. The druids now assemble, and Norma replies to Orovioso's demands for war with a prayer to the chaste moon goddess for peace, cutting the ritual mistletoe ("Casta Diva"). The others echo her words, while she muses privately on her love for her Roman enemy ("Ah! bello a me ritorna").

ACT II

That night, dagger in hand, Norma tries to bring herself to kill her children in their sleep to keep them from Pollione ("Deh! Con te li prendi"). But she cannot, instead summoning Adalgisa to take them to Pollione ("Deh! Non volerhi vittima"). The girl refuses, pleading with the despairing mother to pity her children ("Mira, O Norma"). Norma embraces Adalgisa, overcome by her offer of friendship to go to Pollione and plead for Norma.

Scene II

The druids assemble at their altars to hear Orovioso's announcement that Pollione is being replaced by a crueler commander. He rages at Rome's hateful bondage ("Ah! del tebro al gigo indegno"), but counsels submission for the moment, to make ultimate revolt more certain of success. Awaiting her lover's return, Norma is stunned to learn from Clotilde that Adalgisa's entreaties to him have been in vain. In a fury, the priestess calls the druids and tells them the gods decreed war. She strikes the war shield three times, and her battle cry is taken up by the people ("Guerra! Guerra!"). Orovioso demands a sacrificial victim, and just then Pollione is dragged in, having profaned the sanctuary. Alone with him, Norma vaunts her power over him ("In mia man all'infuoi sete"), but he steadfastly refuses to give up Adalgisa, preferring death. Jealously, the priestess vows to destroy the girl instead. Her people return as she announces the sacrificial victim, a priestess who has broken her vows and betrayed her country — Norma herself. In the horrified silence, she tells Pollione that despite everything that has passed between them, they are bound beyond the grave ("Qual cor tradito"). Moved by her nobility, he insists on sharing her fate. After begging her father to watch over her children ("Deh! Non volerhi vittime"), Norma leads her lover to the pyre, while all pray the gods may be pacified.

Bellini and Norma

By William Weaver

A little group of Vincenzo Bellini's letters tell, in synthesis, the story of Norma's composition. On 23 July, 1831, the composer wrote to his friend, Alessandro Lamperti: "I have already chosen the subject of my new opera, and it is a tragedy entitled Norma, or the Infanticide by Soumet, just performed in Paris and with resounding success."

On 1 September of that same year, Bellini wrote to the singer Giulietta Pasta, who was to be the protagonist of the new opera:

"Now I must apply myself to the opera, whose outline Romani (Felice Romani, Bellini's librettist) gave me only yesterday. I hope this subject will be to your taste. Romani believes it very effective and just right for your encyclopedic character, since Norma's character is the same. He will arrange the situations in such a way that they will arouse no reminiscences of other subjects, and will retouch and even change the characters, if necessary, to derive greater effect from them..."

Pasta's character was indeed encyclopedic. Only a few months before, she had been the first Amina, in Bellini's Sonnambula, a part at the other interpretive pole from the noble Norma. Meanwhile, on 7 September, the composer wrote his mistress, Giuditta Turina:

"I've almost finished the opera's Overture and have sketched an opening chorus, and I am not displeased with them."

On 12 December, a letter not from Bellini, but from his slightly older contemporary, the composer Severo Mercadante, takes the story a stage further. Mercadante writes to Bellini's old friend Francesco Florimo, saying that he has just heard from Bellini, and adding: "I think you'll be interested in a passage I'll quote for you: 'Monday I'll begin the rehearsals of my opera Norma...'"

In a little over three months, from early September to mid-December, Bellini had completed the work that was to be his greatest and most enduring achievement, his undisputed masterpiece.

Undisputed now. On the opening night at La Scala, 26 December, the Milanese audience was cold, if not outright hostile. On returning from the theater, the distraught composer sat down and poured out his heart in a letter to Florimo, in Naples:

"I write you under the impression of grief, a grief I can't express to you. I have just come from La Scala: first performance of Norma. Would you believe it?... Fiasco!!! absolute fiasco!!! To tell you the truth, the audience was severe; it seemed to have come deliberately to pass judgment on me; and with haste (I believe) wanted to make my Norma undergo the same fate as the Druidess I could no longer recognize those dear Milanese who had welcomed, with joy in their faces and exultation in their hearts, Il Pirata, La Straniera, La Sonnambula; and yet I thought that, with Norma, I had given them a worthy sister!"

And, as if justifying himself, the composer went on to list the numbers that seemed to him particularly valid: Norma's opening aria ("Casta Diva"), the duet between the two women, the whole second act. And he concluded, stiffening his upper lip: "I am young, and I feel in my spirit the strength to avenge this terrible failure."

Of course, Norma was not a failure. Already with the second performance, the public began to change its mind, greeting the individual scenes with applause and calling the composer to the footlights for bows. By the end of the 1831-32 season at La Scala, Norma had been sung 39 times. And it had consid-erable competition, in that season, when La Scala revived the Rossini Otello with success, plus Donizetti year-old Anna Bolena and his brand-new Ugo Conte del Parigi.

In 1831, at the time of Norma's fall and rise, Bellini was just 30 (he was born in Catania, Sicily, on 3 November, 1801), but he was already considered a leading Italian composer since his first Milanese success with Il Pirata in 1827. He was not only talented, but remarkably handsome, popular in society and without financial worries. Now he was ready for international fame, and in fact, early in 1833, he was to leave Italy for London and Paris, where — after creating his final great work, I Puritani — he died, on 23 September, 1835.

His career, from his first student opera to I Puritani, lasted barely a decade, but he left an indelible mark not only on the Italian open of his time (Donizetti's Lucia owes a dear debt to Bellini), but on other non-Italian and non-operatic music (Chopin admired him and was influenced by him).

Bellini's life was romantic, and his early biographers romanticized it even more. But his operas, and especially Norma, have a classical simplicity and purity. This quality makes his music singularly personal, immediately recognizable; at least in part, this quality was derived also from the talents of the composer's most frequent, preferred librettist, Felice Romani, the poet of Norma. Thirteen years older than Bellini, Romani considered himself, with some reason, the composer's mentor. And though they quarreled at one point (they made up just before Bellini's death), Bellini always remained impressed by Romani's sober taste and his staid personality. It may well have been Romani who chose the French tragedy Norma for Bellini, since in the field of literature, the poet-librettist was a convinced classicist and anti-romantic. And Alexandre Soumet's dramatic style was consonant with Romani's literary criteria. When the occasion demanded it, Romani could forget his private preferences and turn even seething romantic dramas — like Hugo's Lucrece Borgia — into librettos; but he was happier with less violent, more stately works. In fact, he considerably tempered the tragedy Norma, which in the original Paris version included a mad scene and ended with the protagonist's suicide and murder of her two children. Romani and Bellini invented the finale of noble self-sacrifice for the opera.

The adjective "lunar" has been applied to Norma, and the opera is indeed a nocturne. If "Casta Diva," with its direct appeal to the moon-goddess, is the work's most celebrated aria and one of the most beautiful ever written for the soprano voice, the great scene of the second acts opening ("Dormono entrambi...") is perhaps an even more striking musical and dramatic achievement, with its subtle shifts of mood, its sensitive depiction of rich and profound character. In fact, Norma as a whole, is far more varied than the superficial listener might think. Though it is supremely coherent musically; the opera can contain pages disparate as Oroveso's solemn opening aria and the furious "Guerra! Guerra!" war chorus, the awed dream of Pollione, and the melting duet of Norma and Adalgisa, with its impassioned "friendship" cabaletta, to say nothing of the heart-piercing conclusion.

Norma has been called a "protagonist-opera," and undoubtedly the central role is a prima donna's delight (if she has the vocal skill and stamina and the courage to tackle it). But the other roles are not negligible. The first Adalgisa was Giulia Grisi (Bellini's Juliet in his I Capuleti ed I Montecchi and, later, the first Elvira in I Puritani); the role has now become mezzo-soprano property; but the mezzo who essays it must equal the Norma in range and dramatic ability. And while Domenico Donzelli, the first Pollione, didn't please Bellini (he hadn't studied his part enough), subsequent tenors have proved that, though essentially passive, the Roman warrior can cut a stirring amorous figure. Like previous and subsequent operatic high priests and fathers, Oroveso has little to do but sing. But what he sings, however, is unerringly and austere beautiful.

From the beginning, Norma has had its detractors (Berlioz in the lead) and its convinced admirers. Of these, the most unexpected is Richard Wagner, who said, succinctly: "Of all Bellini's creations, Norma is the one which unites the richest flow of melody with the deepest glow of truth." The opera could not be described more aptly.

Setting

Prologue

The King and Queen are celebrating the birth of their daughter, Princess Aurora.

The Lilac Fairy and her attendants appear to the gentle sounds of harps and violins. The good fairies — The Tenderness Fairy, the Playful Fairy, the Generous Fairy, the Brave Fairy and the Carefree Fairy — all arrive.

Each has brought a gift for the newborn princess.

Terrified servants announce that Carabosse, the evil fairy, is on her way.

She is furious that they forgot to invite her to the ball. Carabosse calls forth a vision of the young Aurora and says she will prick her finger on a spindle and die.

The Lilac Fairy drives Carabosse from Aurora’s cradle and promises to protect the Princess. Good has won this battle against evil. Carabosse leaves the palace, fuming and enraged.

In order to prevent the tragedy foretold by the evil witch, the King issues a command forbidding the use of spindles in his kingdom on pain of death.

Act I

Princess Aurora is now 16. The palace is filled with guests. The suitors are presented to Aurora. She is kind to them all and dances with each of them, without bestowing her favor on any particular one.

An old woman with a bouquet of roses approaches the Princess. Aurora takes the bouquet and dances a waltz. Suddenly, prickng her finger, the Princess falls senseless. A sharp needle was hidden amid the flowers. Everyone is grief-stricken. At this instant, the old woman’s cloak slips from her shoulders. It is the evil Carabosse, in triumph. Drawing their swords, the suitors throw themselves upon her, but the witch disappears.

Aurora’s protector, the Lilac Fairy, appears. She is unable to undo Carabosse’s evil spell, but she can soften its effect. “Aurora is not dead — she is merely asleep,” says the good fairy, and with a wave of her magic wand sends the entire kingdom into a 100-year slumber. The grounds become overgrown with lilac bushes, hiding the castle deep in a forest.

Act II

The overgrown park is inhabited only by the evil Carabosse and her attendants. They bar the way to all who attempt to enter the sleeping kingdom. Suddenly, they hear sounds indicating that the Lilac Fairy is approaching. Carabosse is powerless before her.

In the meantime, Desire has already reached the walls of the royal castle. Looking for the Princess, he hurriedly passes by the sleeping court. He approaches the coach where Aurora lies in a deep sleep.

Desire wakes the sleeping beauty with a passionate kiss. The whole kingdom awakens with her. Aurora and Desire feel all the passion of first love. Enchanted by Aurora's beauty and charm, the Prince asks the King and Queen for their daughter's hand.

Act III

Aurora and Desire's magnificent wedding is being celebrated at the palace.

The many guests include characters from fairy tales. There is Bluebird and his wives, Princess Florine and the Bluebird, Puss in Boots and the White Cat, Little Red Riding Hood and the Wolf, and Hop o'My Thumb and his brothers, with the Ogre chasing them. Cinderella runs by, losing her slipper. Prince Fortune picks it up.

The Diamond Fairy, the Sapphire Fairy, the Golden Fairy and the Silver Fairy come to congratulate Aurora and Desire.

Aurora and Desire, the radiant newlyweds, perform a festive duet.

Apotheosis

General rejoicing. The fountains are playing. The Lilac Fairy, symbolizing the eternal triumph and victory of good, rises above the gushing cascade.

His repertoire included La Silphide (James), La Bayadere (Solor), The Sleeping Beauty (Prince Desire), The Nutcracker (Prince), Swan Lake (Siegfried), Don Quixote (Basil), Giselle (Albrecht), Le Corsaire (Ali), Raymonda (Shahabuddin), Paquita Grand Pas, The Legend of Love (Ferdinand), Scheherazade (Golden Slave), Foléine's Chopiniana, Spectre de la Rose, Balanchine's Theme and Variations, Le Jeune Homme et la Mort, Roland Petit's Carmen.

During his directorship, the following new productions have entered the repertoire of the Kirov Ballet: Balanchine's Symphony in C, Serenade, Apollo and Jewels, Roland Petit Carmen and Le Jeune Homme et la Mort, Kenneth MacMillan's Manon, Le Baiser de la Fee, Poème de l'Estaque, Middle Duet, Cinderella by Alexey Rautmanis; Petrushka, the re-creation of the 1890 production, Le Spectre de la Rose; Raymonda, The Nutcracker (set, costume and production design created by Mikhail Shamailov), three ballets of John Neumeier, William Forsythe's ballets.

Alexander Polianichko (Conductor) was appointed house conductor at the Kirov Opera and Ballet in 1989. In addition to regular performances at the Mariinsky Theatre in St. Petersburg, he has conducted at the Kirov at the Edinburgh International Festival, Savonlinna Opera Festival and on tour in Germany, Israel, Italy, France, Finland, Japan, Korea, the Netherlands, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland and the USA. Alexander Polianichko's engagements have included the Bolshoi Theatre Moscow, the Danish National Opera, Deutsche Oper, English National Opera, Opera National de Paris, the Royal Opera Covent Garden, San Francisco Opera, Stuttgart Opera, Teatro alla Scala and Welsh National Opera. In 1996, he was invited to take the Opera National de Paris to New York for their appearances at the Metropolitan Opera House. His operatic repertoire comprises the core of the Russian repertoire, including Boris Godunov, Khovanshchina, The Marriage and Sorochinsky Fair (Mussorgsky); Tchaikovsky's The Queen of Spades, Eugene Onegin and Mazeppa; Borodin's Prince Igor; The Legend of the Invisible City of Kitezh; Rimsky-Korsakov; The Firebird, Angel and The Drowned (Prokofiev); The Miserly Knight (Rachmaninoff); Mavra (Stravinsky); Lady Macbeth of Mtsensk and The Gambler (Shostakovich). Other repertoire includes Lohengrin (Wagner); Faust (Gounod); Verdis Aida, Don Carlos, Nello and La Traviata; Carmen (Bizet); The Barber of Seville (Rossini); La Bohème, Madama Butterfly, Tosca and Turandot (Puccini); Kurt Weill's Seven Deadly Sins and Sabine (R. Strauss). He conducts an extensive ballet repertoire from classics of the Russian 19th-century school, via the masterpieces of Fokine and Balanchine, to contemporary choreography including works by Neumeier. After graduating as a violinst from the conservatoire in his native Rostov-on-Don (class of Professor M. Dreyer), Alexander Polianichko took up conducting studies with the legendary Professor Ilya Musin at the St. Petersburg Conservatoire, at the same time playing in the St. Petersburg Philharmonic Orchestra under the great Evgeny Mravinsky. In 1988, he was awarded first prize in the Sixth All-Union Conductors' Competition. From 1986 to 1999 Alexander Polianichko was principal conductor and artistic director of the Belarusian State Chamber Orchestra in Minsk, with whom he toured and recorded extensively. He was appointed chief conductor of the Bournemouth Symphony Orchestra in 1998, a post he still holds at the time of the orchestra's disbandment. He has appeared with many of the orchestras in the countries of the former Soviet Union, as well as in Australia, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, New Zealand, Spain, the U.K and the USA. He was a member of the jury at the Rimsky-Korsakov Opera Singers' competition in St. Petersburg (1997) and has conducted at numerous music festivals in his native Russia, including the Golden Mask Festival in Moscow and the White Nights Festival in St. Petersburg.

 Michigan Opera Theatre debut

ACT I

In a cheerless garret on Christmas Eve, Rodolfo, a poet, and Marcello, a painter, keep warm by feeding a stove with pages from Rodolfo's drama. They are joined by Colline, a philosopher, and Schaunard, a musician, who bring food, fuel and funds. As they celebrate their good fortune, Benoit, the landlord, interrupts their gaiety, demanding the rent. They ply the old man with wine, encouraging him to tell his flirtations. With pretended indignation at his indiscretions, they throw him out. Rodolfo's friends depart, agreeing to meet him later at the Cafe Momus. Returning to his work, he is surprised by a knock at the door. The visitor is a pretty young neighbor, Mimi, whose candle has gone out on the ratty stairway and who faints as soon as she enters. Rodolfo revives her with a glass of wine. He lights her candle, but as she leaves, she realizes she cannot find her key. As they search for it, a gust of wind extinguishes both candles. In the moonlight, the poet takes Mimi's shivering hand and tells her of his dreams. She responds by telling him how she lives alone in her attic apartment, embroidering flowers and waiting for the first kiss of April's sun. When Rodolfo's friends call him from the street, he answers that he will be along shortly with a friend. Expressing their newfound love, Mimi and Rodolfo embrace and leave arm in arm.

ACT II

The Latin Quarter bristles with humanity celebrating Christmas Eve. Rodolfo buys Mimi a pink bonnet at a shop near the Cafe Momus. The poet introduces Mimi to his friends. Soon Musetta, Marcello's high-spirited former sweetheart, makes a noisy entrance on the arm of her rich new admirer, the elderly Alcindoro. The ensuing tumult reaches its height when Musetta, trying to regain the painter's attention, sings a waltz, telling how she is the center of attention wherever she goes. Everyone except Marcello is highly amused by the encounter. To get rid of Alcindoro, Musetta complains that her shoe pinches and sends the old man off to have it repaired. The moment he is out of sight, she falls into Marcello's arms. Musetta tells the waiter to charge everything to Alcindoro. A detachment of parading soldiers passes the cafe, and the bohemians fall in behind, lifting Musetta with her shoeless foot to their shoulders.

Alcindoro rushes back with Musetta's shoe, only to face the bill.

ACT III

Back in their garret and separated from their loves, Rodolfo and Marcello lament their loneliness. Colline and Schaunard join them, bringing a meager meal. To lift their spirits, the four stage a mock ball, which turns into a good-natured duel. At the height of their revelry, Musetta bursts into the room, saying Mimi is downstairs, too weak to climb the stairs. Rodolfo runs to assist her. Musetta tells the others how Mimi begged to be taken to Rodolfo so she could die near him. The destitute bohemians go to pawn their goods for a doctor and medicine. Musetta's earnings and Colline's coat, which has served him so faithfully for so long. Alone, Rodolfo and Mimi recall their happy days together. When the others return, Musetta gives Mimi a muff to warm her hands. As Mimi quietly thanks her friends for their kindness, she slips slowly into sleep. Schaunard goes to Mimi's bedside and discovers that she is dead. Rodolfo, seeing the pain on his friend's face, rushes to Mimi, calling her name in despair.

We back the arts so they can move forward.

At Comerica, we believe the arts play an important part in the community. They enrich our lives, stir our souls, and give us inspiration. Supporting the arts is a reflection of one of our core beliefs—that giving back to the communities we serve is our responsibility. But it’s not simply a responsibility, it’s also a great pleasure to see the joy it brings. And that’s what we refer to in the banking business as a great return on an investment.
Kendall Smith (USA)
Lighting Designer
Kendall Smith returns to Michigan Opera Theatre to design lighting for both Norma and La Bohème, respectively his 9th and 30th productions with the company. Mr. Smith made his Michigan Opera Theatre debut in 1988 with The Ballad of Baby Doe. He recently designed the company’s 2005 production of Tosca, as well as Lucia di Lammermoor for Indianapolis Opera. Upcoming engagements include The Daughter of the Regiment with Florida Grand Opera, The Diary of Anne Frank with the Oregon Shakespeare Festival, and a return to Detroit for Aida, in April.

Joanne Weaver (England)
Wig and Makeup Designer
Wig and Makeup Designer Joanne Weaver made her Michigan Opera Theatre debut with Tosca in 1993. She has since acted as resident designer for the company. Ms. Weaver has also designed for opera companies throughout the United States, most recently Des Moines Metro Opera in productions of Tales of Hoffmann, Lucia di Lammermoor and Gloriana. In the coming season, Ms. Weaver will return to Des Moines Metro Opera for a production of Amahl and the Night Visitors, and she will also visit Reno Opera.

Kyle Pfortmiller (USA)

Giving is noble. But receiving definitely has its points. A Charitable Gift Annuity allows you to benefit from both. It lets you contribute to the future financial health of Michigan Opera Theatre. At the same time, you receive guaranteed income for life, partly tax-free, at extremely favorable rates. It is what is commonly known as the best of both worlds. To find out more about Charitable Gift Annuities, call Kim-Lan Trinh, Planned Giving and Major Gifts Manager, at (313) 237-3408.

Ensuring the Future

Imagine a gift that outlives you - that touches future generations in your absence - to experience and enjoy the world of opera.

That's the goal of the Avanti Society, Michigan Opera Theatre's Planned Gift Recognition Program.

The Avanti Society represents a designated group of friends of Michigan Opera Theatre who have made plans to include the organization in their estate plans—whether by will, trust, insurance or life income arrangement. Membership in the Avanti Society is open to all.

Members of the Avanti Society receive a beautifully designed lapel pin, recognition at the annual Avanti Evening, invitations to special events and performances, and are listed as members in our Program Books throughout each season.

AN AVANTI FOR TOMORROW

The growth of Michigan Opera Theatre's permanent Endowment Fund ensures the growth and future vitality of one of the region's greatest cultural assets. You are invited to create your own legacy - your Avanti - through Michigan Opera Theatre.

You may use the enclosed confidential reply card to indicate your gift, or contact Kim-Lan Trinh at (313) 237-3408 to discuss gift options that may benefit you, your heirs and Michigan Opera Theatre.

Confidential Reply: Please return this form to Kim-Lan Trinh, Michigan Opera Theatre, 1526 Broadway, Detroit, MI 48226, or e-mail ktrinh@mopera.org

Contributors to Michigan Opera Theatre's Campaign to Restore the Detroit Opera House

Michigan Opera Theatre extends appreciation to the many donors who contributed so generously to the three phases of the Detroit Opera House fund-raising initiative. The following is a cumulative listing of gifts, of $5,000 and above, to the Capital Campaign to Restore the Detroit Opera House (1989-1998), the New Century Fund Campaign (1999-2001) and the Crowning Achievement Campaign (2002-2004).

We also thank the many donors who contributed gifts below $5,000 for their commitment and belief in the Detroit Opera House project.

Mort Zieve

Mort Zieve was one of the most creative individuals I have ever worked with. His passion for the arts, combined with a wonderful sense of humor, has been a source of pleasure for our friendship for nearly four decades.

Mort served on our board of directors for 25 years and as chairman of Troy-based Simons, Michelson & Zieve Inc., he provided MOT with many years of creative oversight, promoting our seasons with outstanding designs and layouts for programs, books, posters, season brochures and media promotions. His personal involvement in the development of marketing concepts for seasons stimulated all of us, our marketing staff as well as his, to create many award-winning images.

Mort had a great love of music and composed many wonderful songs throughout his life.

But his greatest achievement was the creation of a musical: Higgison: An American Life, which he completed after years of devotion. On June 20th, just two months before he passed away, we presented a concert reading on the Opera House stage before a large audience of friends and admirers. It was a dream come true for Mort and gave us all immense pleasure to hear his impressive work. Our sympathy goes out to his wife Mary Lou and his family.

He will be missed.

Robert VanderKloot

Although Michigan Opera Theatre’s beginning is said to be 1971, the 1960s were a flurry of activity including tour performances and educational programs for the Detroit Grand Opera Association that brought the Metropolitan Opera on its yearly tours to Detroit. Also, there were meetings and parties galore where early planning began to eventually create Detroit’s own opera company.

Many of those meetings and parties took place at the rambling home of my parents, Bob and "Tuttle" VanderKloot. (Tuttle was a nickname given to my mother by her Danish father, William S. Knudsen.) In addition to pencils, paper and electric typewriters, the meetings featured mile-high plates of cookies, and (to everyone’s amazement) guests could copy their meeting notes on one of two early copy machines that were at the house!

One thing that my father, Bob, loved doing was to entertain with story-telling, joke-swapping (often original and “R” rated), tap dancing, and most especially playing the piano and singing. Next to that, Dad loved attending any kind of musical theater. With an unflagging ear, he would come home to the piano and play the “hit tunes” of whatever he had just heard, whether a musical, operetta or opera.

Dad also loved creating new ideas and doing what we now call “networking.” He loved to tell everyone about “David’s and Karen’s projects.” In fact, Detroit Rotary colleague Bob Allesee (Allison) frequently boasts that if it hadn’t been for Dad, that Bob and Maggie would never have gotten involved with Michigan Opera Theatre and what would become the Detroit Opera House.

Bob recently remembered, “Bob VanderKloot invited us to a small meeting where the box seats (of the Detroit Opera House) are now. We thought the plaster was going to fall on our heads. But since Bob and I were the only two people who could play THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER in A flat for the Rotary, I trusted him, and we stayed and listened. Then he introduced David, and we heard about these dreams and really got excited.”

When Dad decided that in order to produce larger scale operas, we had to move out of our home at the Music Hall, Dad said to him, “David, I want to show you a real opera house.” My grandparents, Matt and Ellie VanderKloot, had brought Dad to the Capitol Theater in 1922, the day after it opened, to see a vaudeville show and a silent film. He had thought about that theater fondly during his adult years, hoping it would be put to use again.

David was worried at that time that the opera company was too small to undertake the huge project of restoring and renovating this wonderful theater. Instead, the move was to the Fisher Theater and the Masonic Temple. Years later, David called Dad and asked, “Where was that theater again?” And now the Detroit Opera House is a reality!

The history of Michigan Opera Theatre is really told by Dad’s adult life. First, during the Overture to Opera days, he and Mom attended the tour performances. They became members of the “Founding Committee” of Michigan Opera Theatre. They were made trustees, and Dad served on the board of directors, with both of them working on many committees. After Mom passed away, Dad became an emeritus member of the MOT Board.

Then Dad began attending the performances of young people in the summer camps of Learning at the Opera House. They learned to know him and enjoyed his suggestions and droll remarks. Dad began attending the classes I teach for the Special Performing Arts Club, a project of the Italian Study Group of Troy for Mentally Challenged Adults who enjoy creating and performing. Dad loved these students, and they, in turn, admired him and called him “Uncle Bob.”

So after his long history with Michigan Opera Theatre, here was Dad, the octogenarian, helping young people and mentally challenged adults realize their own talents and creativity. That encompasses everything that Michigan Opera Theatre has, what it does and what it hopes to do.

Dad, who had just turned 90, was with the Special Performing Arts Club last fall of 2004 and saw the beginning of their yearly Create Opera project. After Dad died June 1st, the saddened students decided to dedicate their finished opera performance to him. As Kyle, one of the Special Performing Arts Club members, summed it up in tribute at their June performance, “Thanks for helping us, Uncle Bob!”

Volunteers

Michigan Opera Theatre and the Detroit Opera House present one of the finest and most diverse opera and dance series in the country. The theatrical experiences encompass vocal and orchestral music, dance, drama, costumes, sets and lighting. The achievement of this multiplicity requires many voices and many willing hands. The talented, giving hands of our Opera League, Ushers, Dance Council, Encore!, Ambassadors, Office and Boutique workers, Movers, Supers, Volunteer Education and Adagio volunteers have a significant impact on the overall operation of the company.
Imagine the world without music and dance, or literature and art. Life is incomplete without ways to express ourselves, and to discover who we are and what we can be. That's why Northern Trust proudly supports the arts in its many diverse forms.

Northern Trust has been helping clients meet their financial needs for more than 116 years.
Blanche Pollock

Mrs. Blanche Pollock and her husband, David, were elected to the Michigan Opera Theatre Board of Trustees in 1989. David also served on the Board of Directors until his death in 1995.

Both Blanche and David were active with the company as subscribers and donors since 1971. David served on the MOT Nominating Committee, and Blanche participated on several Opera Ball committees. They were both key volunteers in the first capital campaign to restore the Detroit Opera House.

Mrs. Pollock was well known in the Jewish community for her leadership and generosity to several organizations. After graduating from Wayne State University, she worked as a social worker at the North End Clinic and also the Jewish Family Services. In later years, she became an active volunteer in many social service organizations. "My mother's generosity knew no boundaries. She gave of her time and resources quietly and graciously to so many organizations. She was an inspiring individual," recalls daughter Linda Schafer. Michigan Opera Theatre was fortunate to be a beneficiary of her giving spirit.

Although her health was failing in recent years, she attended the opera whenever possible with her family. Michigan Opera Theatre remains grateful for the many contributions Blanche and David made to the organization during their lives.
We Can Visit You...

Would you like to have a group of opera singers entertain right in your own home, office, club or school? We have a lot of great programs to tempt you!

The Artists of Community Programs, Michigan Opera Theatre's outreach and education department, have traveled all over Michigan, to neighboring states and to Ontario, Canada. This past year saw our singers perform for 2,000 senior citizens at Temple Beth El in Beverly Hills. They performed Broadway excerpts and opera "hits" for hungry Dream Cruise enthusiasts in the Woodward parking lot at the famous Fox and Hounds Restaurant in Bloomfield Hills, and also visited schools and clubs too numerous to list.

We toured the Detroit Metropolitan areas and then took off to other parts of our state; Bay City and Saginaw, Flint and Genesee County, St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti, Port Huron and East China, Leonard and Berrien, Bangor and Essexville, and lots of points in between.

Then we went to Windsor, Ontario. We did over 150 performances, performed for over 55,000 people and logged some 150,000 miles on our van.

If you want us to visit you this year, we are performing special programs. These are an opera about accepting diversity, The Araboolies of Liberty Street, by Ronald Perera, and our anti-smoking musical, The Night Harry Stopped Smoking. Lucky children from participating schools are chosen to perform right along side our professional performers! Middle and high school students will learn a lot about Social Studies in Michigan with the historical revue No Doubt! Middle and high schools may also call to find out about our Workshops in Performing Arts, which we tailor for specific middle and high school needs.

People of all ages enjoy our MOT Sampler, with show tunes and hits from opera and operetta, as well as our yearly rewritten Broadway Revue, with some favorites from the Great White Way.

And Now...You Can Visit Us!

Of course, anyone can attend our opera productions and our presentations in dance, but look what we have created for you...After a pilot project with three schools, we are ready to launch our newest program...

The Detroit Opera House Sampler

Geared for upper elementary through high-school students, our professional singers and stage personnel will treat young people to a tour of the Detroit Opera House (including our stage, backstage — one of the largest in the Midwest — and other parts of the building that our audience never gets to see). Learn about costuming, lighting and our Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestra, one of the largest professional orchestras in Michigan. Learn about other parts of our operations such as public relations, marketing, ticket sales, education, customer relations and how the Detroit Opera House is run.

Then to top it all off, our professional singers will perform excerpts from the MOT Sampler and will conduct a question-and-answer session with your students!

For information about this exciting expansion of our touring programs, call Dolores Tobis, Community Programs' marketing manager, at (313) 237-3429, or e-mail her at dtobis@motopera.org.

We truly look forward to seeing you, either at your place...or at ours — the magnificent Detroit Opera House.
General Information

PHOTOGRAPHY & RECORDING DEVICES Unauthorized cameras and recording devices are not allowed inside the lobby or theater at any time. The taking of photographs of the theater or any performance is strictly prohibited. As a courtesy to our guests, we ask that all paging devices, cell phones and alarm watches be switched to silent mode prior to the start of a performance.

IN CASE OF EMERGENCY Doctors and parents are advised to leave their seat location (located on ticket) and our emergency number, (313) 237-3257, with the service or sitter in case of an emergency. Please observe the lighted exit signs located throughout the theater. In the event of fire or similar emergency, please remain calm and walk — do not run — to the nearest exit. Our ushers are trained to lead you out of the building safely. A trained Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) is onsite during most events. Please see an usher or staff member to contact the EMT.

Please note: All third-floor restrooms are wheelchair accessible.

Unisex accessible restroom located in the GM Opera Café.

NO SMOKING The Detroit Opera House is a smoke-free facility. Ash receptacles are provided on the exterior of all entry doors for those who wish to smoke.

USHERS Ushers are stationed at the top of each aisle. If you have a question or concern, please inform ushers, and they will contact management. If you are interested in becoming a volunteer usher, please call the usher hotline at (313) 237-3253.

LATE SEATING Latecomers will be seated only during an appropriate pause in the program and may view the program on the closed-circuit television monitor located in the Ford lobby until an appropriate program pause occurs. Late seating policies are at the discretion of the production, not opera house management.

LOST & FOUND Lost and Found is located in the Security Department. Please see an usher if you have misplaced an article, or call (313) 961-3500 if you have already left the theater. Items will be held in Lost and Found for 30 days.

PARKING The Detroit Opera House Parking Center, located next to the Detroit Opera House, is now open. This new state-of-the-art facility is reserved specifically for Detroit Opera House patrons during regularly scheduled performances. Entrances and exits are located on both John R and Grand River for added convenience. Prepaid parking is available. Call (313) 237-3237 for more information.

ACCESSIBILITY Accessible seating locations for patrons in wheelchairs are located in all price ranges on the orchestra level. When inquiring about tickets, please ask about these locations if you require special accommodations. Assisted Listening Devices are available on a first-come, first-served basis. Please see an usher to request this service. Although this is a complimentary service, we will request to hold a piece of personal identification while you are using the device. Please contact the Box Office, should you desire special consideration.

CHILDREN Children are welcome; however, all guests are required to hold a ticket, regardless of age. We kindly ask that parental discretion be exercised for certain programs and that all guests remember that during a program such as opera or ballet, the ability of all audience members to hear the music is a prerequisite to enjoyment of the performance. In all cases, babes in arms are not permitted.

SERVICES Concession stands are located on all levels. Please note that food and drinks are not allowed in the auditorium at any time. Coat check is located in the Ford Lobby. The cost is $1.00 per coat. Please note that the Detroit Opera House does not accept responsibility for any personal articles that are not checked at the coat check. Drinking fountains are located in the lobby on floors one and three. Public pay phones are located in the vestibule of the Ford Lobby. Patrons in wheelchairs can access pay phones outside the third-floor ladies’ restrooms.

RENTAL INFORMATION The Detroit Opera House is available for rent by your organization. Please call (313) 961-3500, and ask to be directed to the Special Events Department.

TICKET INFORMATION The Detroit Opera House Ticket Office hours are as follows: Non-performance weeks – Monday through Friday 10:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Performance days – 10:00 a.m. through the first intermission of the evening’s performance, except Saturdays and Sundays, when the Ticket Office will open two hours prior to curtain. Tickets for all public events held at the Detroit Opera House are also available through all TicketMaster phone and retail outlets, or at TicketMaster.com.

OPERA HOUSE TOURS Come join the Opera House Ambassadors for a backstage tour of the Detroit Opera House. Learn about the history of the Opera House and its restoration. Meet the people behind the scenes, tour the stage and see how it operates. Tours are $10.00 per person. For more information, please call (313) 237-3407.

Be advised that, for purposes of Michigan Compiled Laws, Section 28.425o(1)(f), this is an entertainment facility that has a seating capacity of more than 2,500 individuals. It is therefore against the law to carry a concealed pistol on the premises.

Behind every GREAT PERFORMANCE is a commitment to Excellence

With its commitment to excellence in every performance, the Michigan Opera Theatre enriches our community and the quality of our lives.

The MASCO family of companies proudly supports the Michigan Opera Theatre's great productions in its 2005–2006 season.

We believe a strong, supportive presence in the community where we live, work and do business is vital. It strengthens our dedication to excellence in all that we do.
Michigan Opera Theatre offers a convenient transportation option to subscribers for select performances, at easy-to-reach locations.

A MAP OF YOUR PARKING LOCATION AND DEPARTURE TIME WILL BE MAILED TO YOU PRIOR TO PERFORMANCE DATE. PARKING LOCATIONS ARE SUBJECT TO CANCELLATION DUE TO INSUFFICIENT RIDERS.

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

* If you are a Sunday Matinee Subscriber, park or be dropped off at one of the 2 suburban pick-up/drop-off locations.

* Royal Transportation coaches will pick-up 90 minutes prior to curtain time and drop you off at the Madison Avenue entrance to the Detroit Opera House.

* Royal Transportation coaches will leave the Detroit Opera House (Madison Avenue doors) 30 minutes after the final curtain.

* This is a great way to avoid all of the construction traffic and to meet new friends!

* Gives you time to enjoy a beverage or meal at the Cadillac Café in the Detroit Opera House.

* Roundtrip cost is just $15 per person.

* For further information, please call the Ticket Office at (313) 237-SING.
